Notes for Albert Madison Stebbins:

Here's a sad story about my grandparents, which is really the only story I know about them. Bert passed away suddenly from a heart attack sitting at the kitchen table one evening. My dad was with him. Lillian, Bert's wife, had gone to bed earlier and the commotion didn't wake her. When she woke up the next morning, she learned Bert was gone. She never recovered from it. Lillian had been totally dependent on Bert; she didn't know how to drive or even how to balance a check book. Lillian moved from St. Paul to Seattle to live with my Aunt Addie. With Bert gone, Lillian was depressed. She hung herself and my Aunt Addie found her.

Such a sad life. By the time I knew my Aunt, she was an alcoholic and I have wondered if it was because she found her mom like that.
